MESSAGE FROM THE DIRECTOR

RICHARD COLLER

MBA, ADV.DIP.BUS.MGT, AAMI

Director of Professional
Readiness Programs (PRP)

It is always an interesting experience meeting a new batch of our BBA Jaguars, as each of them brings their own unique dynamic to SP Jain. Looking back, I remember the graduating Class of BBA 2019 to be a batch that epitomised our strife for diversity, experience and growth. The cohort was made up of many students with tremendous potential who, over their time at SP Jain, transformed themselves into outstanding business leaders.

The 15s, as we called them (the cohort joined us in Sept'15), introduced a new dynamic to our global campuses by launching and pursuing many new initiatives and competitions. This was the same cohort that organised the inaugural TEDxSPJainSydney from scratch and ensured that it was a great success!

After spending four rollercoaster years in Singapore, Dubai and Sydney, I'm proud to share that the batch has graduated with flying colours. Needless to say, we take a great interest in our students not only during their stay with us, but also after graduation as they embark on their journey - encouraging them to register as alumni and stay in touch with us and their fellow batchmates. Post graduation, the Jaguars who wish to stay in Australia can continue to do so, as after spending two years studying in Australia, they get an entitlement to a two-year unrestricted work rights visa. Many graduates, after discovering what a great place Australia is, take up this opportunity, with some even pursuing Permanent Residency.

Not surprisingly, over 50% of the graduating students from the Class of 2019 are currently utilising their work rights and working with leading global companies in Australia including Grant Thornton, Deloitte, Mediacom, State Bank of India, Stockland, Jones Lang LaSalle, Guzman and Gomez, OMD, Mindshare, Export Connect and Third Horizon Consulting. About 15% of the students are currently pursuing higher education, a majority of whom are in the USA and the UK. We also have a lot of students who travelled back to their home countries to pursue exciting career opportunities there.

I'm so proud to share that the BBA graduates of 2019 have all found success in many different ways! We are glad that we played a role in their success stories, and hope to continue to play an active role in the promotion and development of all the future batches.

Because I have studied and lived in three international cities, I always get to take my global experience to the organisation I'm working in. I can share my experiences with them and enhance those experiences with their culture.

During my Year 1 in Singapore, I interned at many start-ups including Eventory Pvt. Ltd. (Singapore) and Rewheel Eco Solutions (India) as a Marketer, Sales Intern, and Communications Intern. Later, I took up marketing roles at Hindustan Petroleum Corporation Limited and Loreal India. In my final year, I interned at Vogue Australia as a Fashion Intern and also at an NGO called NASSCOM Australia as a Marketing & Events Intern.

Studying abroad is much more than any student can imagine. When you are out there in the world, interacting with people from all around the world and imbibing the culture of three completely different countries, you grow so much as an individual.

At Sydney, I wanted to work somewhere where I'd get hands-on experience. At first, I worked at Export Connect as a Project Intern, and later, I took up the role of their Accounts Manager. The people I work with have not just been excellent colleagues and mentors to me, but they've also given me the space to learn, grow, and ask questions. It's truly a treat to be here every single day.

During my first year at SP Jain, I took up a marketing internship at an e-consultancy and marketing agency. The whole internship experience was so new to me! I was working with a guy from Japan and a girl from Thailand, and we got an opportunity to meet with a lot of senior marketers from different countries and get them together for an event. The internship helped me gain a lot of experience and helped me build an expertise in communication and marketing. It was the starting point to shaping my future career goals.

Living and studying in the three cities of Singapore, Dubai and Sydney was a unique experience. While in Singapore, we were all freshers getting to know each other, in Dubai, we were pushed to become more independent and academics started to get more challenging too. Sydney was a completely different ball-game where we learnt to manage everything on our own from our apartments and studies to internships and jobs.

One of the best decisions I made was to involve myself in different activities and internships that exposed me to tremendous learning experiences. I got a variety of work experience in the form of internships, beginning with a start-up in Singapore, followed by an internship at Deloitte and then Emirates NBD in Dubai. While in Sydney, I got the chance to intern with a private equity firm, helping me build my knowledge. I also made it a point to take part in exciting extra-curricular activities such as TEDx, Chicago Booth Summer Program, CFA Research Challenge and numerous inter-college festivals – all of which helped me hone my interpersonal skills.

I feel very fortunate to have met immensely knowledgeable professors and wonderful friends from across the world who helped me grow personally and professionally. I strongly believe that it's a combination of all my experiences that has taught me a lot about myself and what I am good at. It has been a surprising yet fulfilling journey!

The time I spent at SP Jain exposed me not just to the cultures of the three countries we lived in, but also of the many countries my peers had come from. My first few days at SP Jain were quite a culture shock for me. I was suddenly sharing a roof with people from so many different countries – people with different values, cultures, religion, and upbringing. Even the professors came from all around the world!

Not surprisingly, one of the most important things SP Jain taught me is how to work efficiently with people from these different backgrounds. The 4 years taught me how to understand their view points, how to empathise with them, and how to work seamlessly with them as a team.

SP Jain brings together an incredible diversity in the classroom, and that brings a lot to class. When you study in your home country with a lot of people from the same locality, you would all have a similar way of thinking, and would end up finding the same kind of solutions to a problem. But over here, everyone has completely different outlooks and solutions to the problems that are posed – the solutions you could've never thought of.

The tri-city model by SP Jain is such a wonderful opportunity to capitalise on for two main reasons: first one being the curriculum that is delivered by experienced professors that are formulated in such a way that when you enter the real world you are equipped with your own toolkit. Secondly, after every year, we have four months of vacation and the opportunity to work in three different countries.

During my first year in Singapore, I interned at Philips Lighting in the Marketing and Sales team. In Dubai, I got an opportunity to continue working with them. In my third year, I went to Harvard University to explore and learn more about marketing and entrepreneurship, because I wanted to do something different that year. During my time in Sydney, I also went to the MIT Entrepreneurship and Innovation Bootcamp in February 2019 which was held in Brisbane. I also interned in ExcelBlue which is a technology start-up.

During my 4 undergraduate years, I worked with Ericsson AB (Dubai) as both a TV & Media intern and a CSR intern, Jotun Paints (UAE) as an HR & Marketing intern, and with Fairfax (Sydney) as a Product Research intern. I was also part of the 7 teams selected from Singapore for a workshop at Merck & Co. Pharmaceuticals (Singapore), where my team conducted detailed research and came up with a feasible design of a device that could possibly eliminate biomarkers (cancer cells) from the body.

My experience at all these internships were substantially enhanced by the tri-city learning model at SP Jain, which helped me improve my presentation, teamwork, and communication skills, all of which reflected in my performance. During my BBA, there were several occasions where I used to have multiple assignments to complete within a week. Learning to multi-task and submit these assignments on time played a massive role in preparing me for my roles - I could complete my tasks swiftly without being overwhelmed by the workload.
